CANNIBALISM IN THE NORTHWEST

WINNIPEG, Man., Oct. 12.—Tales of cannibalism, wholesale murder, awful privation and famine and deadly feuds among the natives of north-eastern Canada, between the eastern shore of James bay and Labrador, are brought back by J. A. Osborne, editor of the Port Francis Times, who has just completed a trip of exploration in that desolate, uninviting region.

While at Moose Factory Osborne met a young man who had fled thither in terror of his uncle, who, he said, had killed and eaten eight human beings. There, too, he saw a woman who had killed and eaten her two children last winter, so great was the famine. This lack of food was brought about primarily by the fact that the woods are without the usual number of deer and rabbits upon which the natives usually subsist.

A feud between two halfbreed families resulted from the killing by two brothers of a hunter who was disguised as a bear. Relatives of the dead man went to the home village of the hunters and killed five members of the family while the brothers were away. Friends of the brothers thereupon took up the fight and destroyed the family of the murderers, so that in all thirteen persons lost their lives as the result of the first accidental shooting.

As these occurrences did not seem to cause any great stir in that region Osborne has come to the conclusion that cannibalism was practiced among the Indians and halfbreeds.

NEEDS PROSPECTING.

Unusual interest is manifested in the mining operations carried on in the Battle Mountain district, and it seems that every time a new mining man inspects that camp he is very well pleased with what opportunities are afforded for mineral development. W. C. Robinson, an experienced mining man from Colorado, has the following to say regarding the camp:

"The Battle Mountain mining district offers a greater area of mineralized ground than any other district I know of. Comparatively little development has ever been done, so but little is known of what is beneath the promising surface, with the exception, of course, of some of the old mines. Some of these were abandoned years ago, but in my judgment could now be opened up and worked at a profit. The decreased cost and the increased skill with which ore is mined and treated now as compared to twenty years ago is bringing into life many old mines. One thing I could emphasize, and that is the district seems to have been but very slightly prospected and nothing better could happen to the country than to have a few hundred active and intelligent prospectors scattered over it."

TONOPAH MAN OPENS NEW CAMP

E. L. FLETCHER WILL BUILD TOLL ROAD REDUCING DISTANCES.

Within the next sixty days, unless something unforeseen transpires to defeat the purposes of the promoters, there will be open for traffic, a first class toll road between the mouth of North creek, in Spring valley, and Ely, which will cut off fully fifty miles from the distance between these points, and will reduce the grade through the mountain pass so considerably that it will be an easy matter to transport the heaviest loads at all times of the year between the points affected.

The importance of this toll road to Ely, cannot be overestimated. It will bring Muncy creek, which is now eighty-seven miles away, to a distance of thirty miles; Orem, now ninety miles distant will be but forty miles from the camp; other distances to be reduced will be as follows: Trout creek, Utah, now 140 miles, to be ninety miles; Tibbets, now 110 miles, to be seventy miles; Deep creek, Utah, now 140 miles, to be ninety miles.

This road will make all of these districts directly tributary to Ely and will make this point the supply station and shipping point for all of the great mining areas that will be opened by the road.

The road will make Ely the shipping point for all Muncy creek mining district ores, to the smelters at Salt Lake. It will also afford an outlet, by way of Ely, for the ores that are mined in Siegel, Tibbets, Silver Mountain, and all districts in the Spring creek range and the tributary ranges.

These districts are especially rich in lead, silver and copper, and the tonnage that can now be shipped from the mines will aggregate $12,000 tons per year. The districts have been seriously handicapped by reason of the inaccessibility of the country, and the lack of means of transportation. The long freight haul to the railroad here, has militated against the development of the country, but now that this haul will be cut down by fifty miles, and that the grade will be materially reduced, the development of the country affected will be greatly facilitated.

It is conservatively estimated that within a year from the time of completion of the road, the output to the smelters, coming from that territory, and passing through Ely will be not less than 30,000 tons.

The road will also place the stock raising and agricultural belts traversed, fifty miles closer to the market and fifty miles nearer a shipping point. The value of these interests cannot be overestimated.

The project is one on which E. L. Fletcher, prominent as a promoter and mining man in Tonopah, has been carefully working on for several months. Mr. Fletcher has recently acquired extensive interests in the Muncy creek country, where he has a large area of exceptionally promising copper property which is already producing a high-grade of the ores; he has acquired the Cameron estate and the Noe estate, with their valuable water rights; the Silver Mountain group near Orem, and the Grand Deposit group north of Muncy creek.

It is his intention to develop these extensive holdings as rapidly as possible and for the purpose of creating a new and better outlet for the ores, determined to build a new road to Ely. To make the road pay for itself, so that he would not be placed at the enormous expense consequent upon its building, he has determined to make it a toll road, with a low tariff on travelers and freighters.

While the tariffs that will be charged upon traffic have not all been arranged, it is understood that they will be moderate, not more than $5 for a six-horse team for the round trip from end to end.

The fact that the present route is 1.95 per cent grade as a general average, and that for a distance of between one and one-half miles and two miles at Shellbourne pass the grade is fully 3 1/2 per cent, while the new route will have an average of 1 1/2 per cent, and at the heaviest will not run more than 3 per cent, and then for only a comparatively short distance, will make the road popular with heavy freighters. The shortening of the haul by fifty miles will also add greatly to the popularity of the road. The pass through which it will traverse is 200 feet lower than Shellbourne pass, or about the same as Conners ranch pass to Osceola.

Mr. Fletcher, soon after securing these properties, and deciding to construct the road, came to Ely and engaged Attorney Charles R. Reeves to attend to the legal end of the arrangements. He also engaged Engineer W. P. O'Crane of Tonopah to run a preliminary line and to estimate the cost of construction. This line has been completed, and the estimates are now in the hands of Mr. Fletcher.

The road will be macadamized over the soft spots that have been encountered in the preliminary, and at all points where necessary, the sides will be rip-rapped. Bridges and culverts will be placed in the few points where they will be necessary, and the road will be maintained in the finest possible condition. The estimated cost, including an estimate of the macadamizing and the cutting of one or two grades, will not exceed $10,000.

Mr. Fletcher left Ely for Tonopah a few days ago, after going over the line proposed, and after completing all the preliminary arrangements. There will be employed on the line between fifty and 100 men to perform the construction work.—White Pine News.
